Strange Exhibition.

A German gentleman, advanced in years, named Franz Vester, at present a resident of Newark, recently obtained a patent for a safety coffin, designed so as to provide a way of escape to those who might be buried during suslence of epidimics. This invention consists of a coffin constructed similar to those new in use, except that it is a little higher, to allow of the free movement of the body; the top lid is moveable from head to breast, and in case of interment is left open, with a spring attached ceptacle for refreshments and restoratives. The in Superphosphates. For permanent, as well most important part of the invention is a box as for immediate powerful effect upon land, it about two feet square, resembling very much a chimney, with a cover and ornamental gravework on the top. This box is of sufficient length to extend from the head of the coffin to about one foot above ground. The cover is fastened down by a catch on the inside, and cannot be unfastened from the outside. Just below the cover is a bell similar to those used on street railways cars, with a cord appended, which, upon being pulled, sounds an alarm, and at the same time a spring throws the cover from the "chimney box." Then, if the person on the inside has sufficient strength, he or she can take hold of a rope suspended from near the top of the chimney box, and, with the assistance of cleets nailed to the sides, ascend to the outer world; or otherwise the individual can rest at ease, munch his lunch, drink the wine, and ring the bell for the sexton to come Having an experience of 16 years in tuning other sources of supply from which its raw mawine, and ring the bell for the sexton to come and assist him out.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Vester gave an exhibition of the working of this invention by being buried, and, after more than an hour's interment, resurrecting himself.

The exhibition took place at Baire's Brewery Garden, on Springfield avenue, Newark, and although fifty cents admission was charged, some six hundred people were assembled to witness the novel exhibition.

About 3 P. M. the grave diggers excavated a hole six feet deep; a black coffin with silver trimmings was placed upon two supports over trimmings was placed upon two supports over the subscriber having established at the Catter of the production of the company to furnish the best fertilizer that enterprise and capital, aided by the best scientific ability, formers citizens and the nucleic generally in the subscriber having established at the Catter of the production of the company to furnish the best fertilizer that enterprise and capital, aided by the best scientific ability, it. The business in future will be earth between him and daylight. After the lapse of an hour and a quarter, a gentleman stated that Mr. Vester was to remain down below for two hours, but that some of the spectators were anxious to return home, and consequently, if agreeable, Mr. Vester would appear at once, or remain the specified time. All present being satisfied, a signal was given, and a minute after Mr. Vester, unaided, stepped out of his living grave, with no more perceptible exhaustion than would have been caused by walking two or three blocks under the hot sun. His exit was received with great enthusiasm and applause, and hundreds rushed to embrace and congratulate Mr. Vester upon the success of this most novel invention.

It is stated that Mr. Vester will give a similar exhibition in New York in a few days. - N. Y. Times.

A MAN ATTACKED BY MARTINS.—The resiidents of a block in Milwaukie being annoyed by the martins which had built their nests under the eaves of the building, Mr. Desforges went upon the roof armed with a broom to dispossesse the feathered nuisance. At his first movement the birds gave token of a determination to defend their homes. Mr. D. for a few seconds was considerably amused at the actions of the little birds, and watched them with some interest. To try the effect he swung his broom about among them, when instead of being intimidated they more boldly gathered about and uttered their notes until the sound was deafening-and pecked away as if they would tear Mr. D. to pieces. He began to think the affair was getting a little warmer than he had counted upon, and he started for the sky-light.

His first movement exasperated the martins, and they renewed their efforts. They gathered in dense numbers before Mr. D. and fought every inch of the ground. Their thrusts were not serious, for by an effort Mr. D. kept them out of his face, and let them pick away at his clothing, which they could not pierce. Twice Mr. D. was thrown down on the flat roof, and each time the martins, fairly crazy, made their efforts with renewed energy and determination, and finally Mr. D. was compelled to lay down on his body, and by the aid of his hands to crawl along to the skylight. This new tactic nonplussed the martins, but did not drive them off the field. Mr. D. finally succeeded in getting beneath the roof, while the martins gathered about the skylight and uttered their shrill notes of defiance.

A LATE BURIAL.—On the 22d of July were committed to the earth in Harpurthey Cemetery, the remains of Miss Beeswick, removed from the Peter Museum. There is a tradition that this lady, who is supposed to have died about one hundred years ago, had acquired so strong a fear of being buried alive, that she left certain property to her medical attendants so long, so the story runs, as she could be kept above ground. The doctor seemed to have embalmed the body with tar, and then swathed it with a strong bandage, leaving the face exposed, and to have kept "her" out of the grave as long as he could. For many years past the mummy has been lodged in the room of the Manchester Natural History Society, where it has been an object of much popular interest. It seems that the Commissioners, the Society's collections, have deemed this spe-

Such persons must, before contem-MARRIAGE, reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial hap-

through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with your own. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votar, of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seed of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those, who from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin-bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or the grant of the pass full is not the pass full in a last the pass full in a last the pass full is a last the mouth or the grant full is not the pass full in a last the mouth or the grant full is not the pass full in a last the mouth or the grant full is not the mouth or the grant full in the grant full is not the grant full in the gra of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awing disease becomes a horrid object of commissera-tion, till death puts a period to his dreadful suf ferings, by sending him to "that Undiscovered Country from whence no traveller returns. It is a MELANCHOLY FACT that thou sands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who by the use of that DEADLY POISON, MP R-
